

His Majesty's
Army and Navy Veterans

WHO HAVE SERVED IN THE ARMY, NAVY,
COLONIAL FORCES, MILITIA,
OR R. N. C. V. R.

Organized August, 1887, at Toronto, in commemoration of Her Late Majesty's Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

(Incorporated 1888)

Annual Report, 1918.

"In Unity there is Strength."

ATTENTION OF ALL VETERANS is called to the fact that this Association was not organized to commemorate any one battle, as such an Association would in the course of time cease to exist when the members had answered the last roll call.

This is an Association of all Veterans of good character who have served in the Army, Navy, Colonial Forces, Militia or R. N. C. V. Reserve.

This Association was organized in 1887, incorporated in 1888, and has been working satisfactorily for over thirty years on a well-established basis, has now some three thousand dollars deposited to its credit in the bank, and other assets, and pays on the death of each member, to the next of kin, fifty dollars for funeral expenses. Veterans of every branch of the service should realize the advisability of joining this Association, which should be a lasting benefit to all who do so, and will not be confined to any limited number of men.

Every man who has served in the Army, Navy, Colonial Forces, Militia, or R. N. C. V. R. is invited to join this old and well-established Association.

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

GENERAL SIR DOUGLAS HAIG
Commander of the British Forces in France.

Aims and Objects.

1st.—COMRADESHIP and the protection, uplifting, comfort and welfare of every man who has taken up arms in defence of his country, many of whom have spent the best part of their lives in the service of the British Empire, and are deserving of recognition by their country and fellow-men.

2nd.—TO BRING Veterans of all branches of the service in closer touch with each other for their mutual benefit.

3rd.—To assist to the best of our ability Comrades in sickness or distress, and to help Comrades to obtain employment when required.

4th.—TO ESTABLISH a Veterans' Home for soldiers, with recreation, reading, smoking, newspaper, sleeping and other necessary rooms and accommodation, under proper management, where Veterans of all ranks could meet with some comfort, for their mutual recreation and benefit.

Report for the year 1918.

Your Executive Committee beg to submit the following report covering the year 1917:—

The terribly devastating World War is still going on in Europe, notwithstanding that another year has passed since we made our last annual report.

Our hopes were then high, that ere this time the awful carnage and shedding of blood would have ceased, the white-winged dove of Peace have settled down for ever, and a Peace Treaty signed by the democracies of the world which would guarantee a spirit of good-will to be existing among all nations.

This desired Peace, however, can only be secured by the utter demolition of any form of government which would make might alone right. This is the octopus against which the Allies are still struggling, and it has fastened its tentacles around Russia and some of the smaller nations, with the hope of gaining some paramount advantage that would assist them in overcoming the Allies.

That the Prussian hopes are in vain, we have not the slightest doubt, as that British Front, although sometimes bent, has never broken, and, with the help of Almighty God and our brave Allies, the ruthless Hunnish hordes will ere long be driven from the lands which they have stolen by trickery, murder and rapine, the House of Hohenzollern driven to death or exile, Belgium given back her honorable place among the nations, France's territory, taken from her in 1870, returned, and Germany as a nation blotted from the World's Map geographically and politically.

As representatives of two branches of the British Forces, we have great reason to be proud of our Army and Navy. The former, as we know, has withstood and thrown back every attempt of the enemy by force, strategy, deceit, and cunning to overcome them. That bulldog tenacity for which the British Tommy has earned a world-wide reputation will prove the overthrow of Prussian hopes and ultimately be their undoing.

Some people ask, what has our Navy been doing. Such people—and they are many—have not been faithful and earnest watchers of everyday events.

Where would the millions of soldiers who have reached, and are still reaching, the trenches have been had it not been for that watchdog of all seas, the British Navy. The hearts of oak of Nelson's day are the hearts of steel and oak of to-day. Our merchant marine, manned by as sturdy hearts as ever sailed the seas, have supplied our fighting men with the necessaries which make them strong to continue the work, which alone can bring about the desired end.

Surely these critics have forgotten the Battle of Jutland and overlooked entirely that noble piece of daring and strategy, the blocking of Kiel Canal, the outlet of the German submarines.

But we must not be selfish. There is another branch of the service which is doing a most important work in the upholding of British bravery and honor. We refer to the Royal Air Service on both land and sea. They are the eyes and ears of the service and many brave hearts have been stopped forever in their efforts to bring about the overthrow of a nation whose sole desire is to blot out all that is good, just, holy and honorable, for the sake of their national aggrandizement.

The part our Canadian boys have taken in each Arm of the Service is well known to all of us, and we have read with just pride of their heroic deeds and sacrifices. They have answered to that touching call of a fellow-Canadian hero lately passed away. We refer to the poem written by the late Lt.-Col. McRae, a verse of which here follows:

“Take up the quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch—be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.”

The Association has during the last year paid six death claims, assisted a number of sick comrades and their wives and families when in need, as well as securing employment for those out of work.

The Association paraded on Victoria Day and decorated the monuments in Victoria Memorial Park and Queen's Park.

Two very successful social concerts were held during the year and proved enjoyable and a financial success, adding one hundred and twenty-five dollars to the Contingent Fund.

The membership of the Association has greatly increased during the past year, and Veterans of all branches of the service and all wars—appreciating its stability, that it is not organized to commemorate any one war or battle; that it has been incorporated for over thirty years; that it has paid every death claim, does not owe one dollar, and has now nearly four thousand dollars in assets, are joining in membership every meeting and we have now in our ranks a number of members of every other Veteran Association in the city.

At Christmas time the Association voted a present of five dollars cash to each of our comrades, some ten in number, who were confined to the house through illness.

By the unanimous vote of the Association one thousand dollars was invested in a Victory Bond.

Your Executive Committee desire to place on record their appreciation of the very generous contribution of fifty dollars by Mrs. Robt. M. Ogilvie of Ottawa, daughter of our late esteemed comrade George Moorman, to be placed in our Contingent Fund for the relief of comrades overseas and in loving remembrance of her father. Comrade Moorman was for many years a respected member of His Majesty's Army and Navy Veterans and has rendered valuable service to his country.

During the year our late President, Lieut.-Colonel W. Andrews Collins, owing to the time required by his various military duties, found it necessary to resign his position as President. He had filled this office for many years and had rendered much valuable service to the Association. Comrade Thos. M. Burn, Vice-President, was elected President and held office until the annual elections when he declined re-nomination. Major Ross C. Cockburn, late Overseas Battalion, was elected President and Comrade H. Algar, for twenty-two years in H. M. Royal Navy, Vice-President.

Captain Charles Wake, late quartermaster of the P.P.L.I., who went overseas with the first contingent, has returned to Toronto and went overseas with the first contingent, has returned to Toronto and was given an enthusiastic reception. He has received an appointment after his second trip over the seas in Military District No. 2. We hope he may remain among us and give his valuable support and assistance to the Association.

The following Comrades have returned from overseas and were welcomed home by their Comrades. They have taken a great interest in the Association since their return and been the means of bringing in many new members: W. E. Francis, W. J. Elliott, C. W. Finimore, W. G. Hipgrave, J. Hoalt, H. Murrell, A. Such, Charles Tellett, I. H. Waterworth, W. A. Arthur, G. F. Hird, George Hine.

The following Comrades answered their last "roll call" at home and are now resting: Comrade C. Flight, Comrade J. Moorman, Comrade J. Kemish, Comrade T. Robinson, Comrade H. J. Surman, Comrade C. Watts.

We regret to be obliged to report that since the close of the year 1917, which this report is supposed only to cover, we have lost by death three valuable members of the Association, viz., Lieut.-Colonel W. A. Collins, Charles Wilson and J. Brown, Veterans who had belonged to the Association for many years and were much esteemed by their Comrades.

The Honor Roll and Financial Statement follows, all of which are respectfully submitted.

Signed on behalf of the Executive Committee.

T. M. BURN,
Chairman.

W. H. COOPER,
Secretary.

REAL FIGHTING RIBBONS, AND WHAT THEY SIGNIFY VETERANS OF MANY FIGHTS MAY BE IDENTIFIED BY THE MEDAL RIBBONS THEY WEAR. (KING'S REGULATIONS.)

By the medal ribbons they wear one may know what campaigns our soldiers and sailors have seen, and what special distinctions they have won. Such medal ribbons are always worn on the left breast. Any ribbons worn on the right are representative of medals awarded outside the army or navy, and are usually those given with life-saving awards.

The medal ribbon of the Victoria Cross has first place of all decorations on the tunic of a soldier or the jacket of a sailor. The army V.C. winner is entitled to wear the rich, dark red ribbon, the sailor a blue ribbon.

Other medal ribbons worn by soldiers akin in color to that of the V.C. are those that go with the Order of the Bath, the French Legion of Honor, the Long Service and Good Conduct Medals. Each of the above-named ribbons is red with thin white stripe down centre for Imperial troops, red with thin white stripe down each edge for Canadian troops.

The blue ribbon of the naval V.C. might easily be mistaken for the ribbon of the Khedive's Bronze Star, the meritorious Service, or the Royal Humane Society medal for saving life. All are plain blue, of slightly different shades.

TOKEN OF THE BRAVE.

Other medal ribbons are those worn by the winner of the D.S.O. (red centre blue edge), the D.S.O. Cross (blue, white, blue), or the Distinguished Service Medal (two white stripes on blue).

The Military Cross is easily known by the white edge and purple centre of the ribbon. The D.C.M. ribbon is red on each edge and blue in the centre, and the Military Medal owner wears a blue, white, red ribbon.

SOME CAMPAIGN RIBBONS.

Some of the medal ribbons worn are the scarlet, green, and black of the Sudan affair of 910-12; the green, white, red of the Tibet

Expedition, 1903-4; the dark and light red ribbon of the Zulu Rising of 1906, and the black, yellow and green of the African General Service Medal given about the same time.

The Ashanti warrior of 1901 may be recognized by the black and green ribbon he wears, and the man who went to China in 1900 has a yellow and red ribbon.

The South African ribbon (Queen's) is a combination of red, blue, and gold, the South African (King's) green, white, and orange.

There was fighting in East and Central Africa in 1897-9, and those who were in that fight wear an orange and scarlet ribbon. The Sudan fighter of 1896-7 has an orange, scarlet and black combination, and a Central African expedition before that time was followed by the issue of a black, white and brown medal ribbon.

MORE EMPIRE BUILDING.

Other Empire-making incidents are recalled by the ribbons issued with the medal awarded for the Matabeleland, Rhodesia, and Mashonaland fighting of the late '90's, a gold and purple prettiness.

The North-West Rebellion veteran wears a light blue and red ribbon, and the Egyptian warrior of 1882-89 a blue and white token. The Cape of Good Hope skirmishings of 1880-89 were followed by the issue of a purple and gold ribbon. The Afghanistan affair of '73-80' brought a red and green combination to notice, and the Ashantee Expedition another purple and gold.

REAL OLD-TIMERS.

Battles in Abyssinia in '67-68' caused the issue of a white, red, white ribbon. The veteran of '66' and '67' (Canada General Service, Fenian Raids) have a red, white, red ribbon; the men who fought in China in '57-60' have a rich yellow and red ribbon. The South African campaigns, between 1834-79 brought a similar decoration in the shape of an orange and purple striped ribbon. The Punjab, of '48-49,' a dark blue and yellow, and the New Zealand fights in '55-66' a blue and red. Officers' long-service decoration, and long-service medal, N.C., and men (volunteers), green ribbon.

C.E.F. FIGHTING SIGNS.

Some members of the C.E.F. wear the medal ribbons that go with the special medals awarded for bravery in the field, but no authorized medal ribbon has been issued for this war. The "Allied" ribbon worn by some men is not an official award.

What marks the warrior who has been wounded is a strip of gold braid sewn on the tunic sleeve for each time wounded, or a strip of silver braid if sickness caused him to be invalided home.

Original members of the First Canadian Division may be recognized by the color of their shoulder straps, blue for the infantry, red for the artillery, A.S.C., A.M.C., and yellow for the cavalry.

Members of the C.E.F. who have been at the front are given a button centred with a shield bearing the Union Jack, and inscribed, "For Service at the Front."

Men invalided home from England get a button with the Union Jack square in the centre, and the lettering, "For Service Overseas."

Honor Roll of the Present Great War.

Forty-five members of the Association volunteered and were accepted for active service overseas in the present great war, and a number have joined the Home Guards and Active Militia for Home Service. Four of those on the firing line have been killed, nine wounded, two missing, and one taken prisoner of war.

Killed—Comrades A. W. Linnington, Sydney Mulliss, Lance-Corp. I. Scanes and A. E. Pound.

Wounded—Comrades Captain C. W. Finnemore, Charles Tellett, M. E. Francis, W. A. Arthur, W. J. Elliott, B. Edwards, B. Proudfoot, J. H. Waterworth, W. G. Hipgrave (since returned).

Missing—B. Edwards and A. E. Pound (since reported killed).

Prisoner of War—F. D. Lorsch.

The Vice-President's Letter, 1918.

Comrades:

I am sure I am creating a precedent by inserting a letter to you all, but I feel we need precedents; we need progress; we need to be up and doing, and our need was never so real as now.

The history of all attempts to form a worthy ex-sailors' and soldiers' association will some day make interesting and instructive reading, and apparently it has needed the greatest war in history to bring this question to a head. Looking back over the past records we find that the trouble with us veterans of the older wars has been that we are too spasmodic, too local and narrow in our outlook. I think the reason has been that the pre-war navy and army conditions cramped and warped our initiative and made us slaves to a mere machine-like routine. At the termination of our long service engagements we found ourselves "high and dry," with little capacity to act and think for ourselves (at least for a time). Each campaign had its association of comrades, but these were, for the most part, cheerful futilities, mere charitable, impracticable administrations, run principally by officers, and were generally objects of suspicion to the real veteran. Of course there were brilliant exceptions, but how few of these organizations were really effective in "obtaining employment," "building homes" or "substantially helping the maimed and aged veteran?" Yet most of them claimed credit for all these things in their constitutions. The main trouble is, however, that the associations lack the actual, active support of the ex-sailor and soldier himself. The first essential, if we ex-sailors and soldiers are to exert an influence beneficial to our vital interests, is to get ourselves and our comrades vitally interested in ourselves. This truth has been realized for the last few years by the "progressives" of our own association, but obstructionists die hard and slowly. "New blood" introduced into associations, as with individuals, is an excellent cure for "anæmia," and we have certainly suffered for some time from "general debility." New officers of the progressive type (but rational), able executive committees, less red tape and ritual at general meetings and extra meetings for important unfinished business, cannot be too strongly advocated.

The governments have been primarily responsible for the disregard of the ex-sailors' and soldiers' interests, but the sound, common-sense decision of comrades to break away from political exploiters has shown what our idea of true patriotism is. A union of all veterans, Dominion-wide, could be so designed as to be a great social and national bulwark in the future. The army and navy veterans should be the medium between officialdom and the ex-fighting man of both services—practical, non-political and non-militant, but influential—simply because behind it lies the one great object of these associations—comradeship.

Let us all, then, confine our activities to really useful and practical ideas, such as pensions, dependants' allowances, employment for discharged men, homes for maimed and aged veterans, and the operation of the Military Service Act. Uphold the comradeship created and cemented in the most heroic battles of history on sea and land; then the association is bound to receive and maintain the loyal support of both services and also of the governments.

Your Comrade,

H. ALGAR.

WHEN VETERAN HAS STRIPES.

MEN WHO SERVED, OR TRIED TO SERVE, ARE DIVIDED INTO FOUR CLASSES.

Four classes of war service badges known as "A," "B," "C," and "D," are being issued in Canada to men who have served, or tried to serve, during the great war.

By far the most ornate of the badges is that known as class "B," which is a handsome silver token, much more elaborate than any of the others, and is given for service in England, as well as for service at the front. The explanation is that this badge is an Imperial one and carries no restriction as to where service was rendered. The "A" badge for service at the front is a simple medallion, similar to those issued by the Patriotic Fund to returned soldiers. This is worn in addition to the class "B" badge by the men who have actually seen service at the front.

CLASS "A" BADGE.

This badge is issued to officers and men who have seen service at the front with a unit of the C.E.F. Royal Flying Corps officers are eligible providing they are still on the strength of the C.E.F. and only attached to the R.F.C. This badge is only given on honorable discharge and is not given to men discharged for "Cessation of working pay."

CLASS "B" BADGE.

Class "B" badge is the British Service Badge, which is issued by the British Government to Canadians who have served in a C.E.F. unit in England and is subject to the British regulations which are men honorable discharged on account of old age, wound or sickness. Officers and men who have served at the front are also eligible for this decoration. This badge is issued to all who have served in the Imperial army, whether in home or Dominion forces.

CLASS "C" BADGE.

Officers and men who have served for at least three months in the C.E.F. in Canada, or in Bermuda, are entitled to this badge, which also required that the recipient be honorably discharged.

CLASS "D" BADGE.

Those who have been rejected at enlistment prior to August 10, 1917, and are now in category "E," or unfit for military service under the Military Service Act, or who have been discharged from the C. E. F., with less than three months' service, are entitled to "D" badge. Both "C" and "D" badges are of bronze.

The Army and Navy Veterans

Meet on the First Tuesday in each month in the Sons of England Hall, cor. Richmond and Bertie Streets.

CONDITIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP, ETC.

Any man under 55 years of age, who is of good character and in general good health, may become a Benefit Member providing he can produce satisfactory proof of having served in any part of the British Empire in His Majesty's Army, Navy, Colonial Forces, Volunteer Militia or R. N. C. V. R. on the following conditions:

Must have had at least three years' service in the Militia, or one year's service in the C. E. F.

Except those who have had actual war service, or awarded medals for the same.

Any ex-Service man, irrespective of age, may become an honorary member, on payment of $1.00 annually, or for life membership $15.00, payable in advance. He shall have the privilege of expressing his opinions, but without votes or monetary benefits.

When a man is proposed for Benefit Membership his proposer shall pay on the applicant's behalf the sum of 25c. in the case of men under 50 years of age, and 40c. for men between the age of 50 and 55 years, which shall be considered their Monthly Dues, and at the time of their initiation the further sum of $2.00 or $3.00 respectively, which will be their Initiation Fees.

HONORARY PATRONS.

Loyal Patriotic Citizens who are not connected with the military, who realize and appreciate their services, and who approve and desire to assist in the good work being done by this Association, may become Honorary Patrons and be entitled to our Association Button, under the same conditions as all Honorary Life Members on their contributing not less than twenty-five dollars. But this will not interfere with any friends subscribing any sum or sums they may see fit to the funds of The Army and Navy Veterans.

Comrades changing address or ill or knowing of a Comrade being ill should notify Secretary immediately.
